Buenos Aires, November 2nd., 2010

To the Presidents of the National Maritime Law Associations, to the Titulary Members of the Comité Maritime International, and to the Members of the National Maritime Law Associations to all those interested in Maritime Law

We wish to inform that the next International Colloquium of the Comité Maritime International will be held in Buenos Aires in October 24th., 25th., 26th. and 27th., 2010, hosted by the Asociación Argentina de Derecho Marítimo.

Some of the issues to be discussed in the Colloquium will be Environmental Salvage, the Rotterdam Rules, the Brussels Convention of 1910 on Collisions and its progress over the last 100 years, and Judicial Sales of Ships and foreign enforcement difficulties.

Besides the academic activities, the Colloquium will be a new chance to deepen the friendship between those who in the past have attended the Comité Maritime International meetings and for those who come for the very first time to gain new friends.

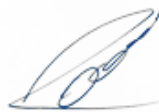

The Asociación Argentina de Derecho Marítimo is organizing a Social Program for the participants and their accompanying persons; this program includes a Tango Show, a gala dinner at Yacht Club Puerto Madero, visits to varied places in Buenos Aires, the most European of South American cities, and a trip through the Delta of the Parana River.

Before or after the Colloquium, the participants will have the opportunity to visit different destinations in our country, such as Bariloche and its lakes, Calafate and the Perito Moreno Glacier, the Iguazu Falls surrounded by a subtropical rainforest, and the Argentinean Northwest with its native villages.

The Asociación Argentina de Derecho Marítimo is making every effort to ensure that the Colloquium's participants enjoy their stay in Argentina in the lovely spring of the Southern Hemisphere.

Buenos Aires, October 2009.
